The German Contribution to the 2027 VENICE ARCHITECTURE BIENNAL – CONVIVERE An exhibition about spaces of everyday life together, CONVIVERE explores the in-between spaces of living: the threshold, the staircase, the courtyard, the space in front of the door. This is where trust, neighbourhood and community emerge. How does architecture contribute to these spaces in which a democratic society takes shape? Curated by Kawahara Krause Architects, Andres Lepik and Olga Cobuscean, the German Pavilion brings together a selection of architectural situations from different periods of housing construction in Germany that enable encounters and interaction. The focus is not on individual buildings, but on specific moments and transitions—situations that offer the capacity for social exchange.

The exhibition material will be developed in collaboration with students from four departments at German universities: Prof. Oda Pälmke, FATUK RPTU; Prof. Anne-Julchen Bernhardt, RWTH; Prof. Benedikt Boucsein, TUM; and Prof. Tatsuya Kawahara, ABK. Together, we will research, explore and present these spatial situations. We will undertake research excursion(s), meet regularly at the department for Reading-Drawing-Room sessions, and ultimately participate in Venice in a format to be developed together. Participation in the course requires a strong performance in spatial design. If you are interested, please feel free to contact us by email at oda.paelmke@rptu.de. In consultation, the course can be taken as an elective, double elective, seminar, or design studio.
